Detective-Sergeants Heidelberg and McCloskey, of this city, have been sent to Jackson, Tenn., to identify William Lord Moore, alias the Rev. G. F. B. Howard, who is on trial in Jackson for using the United States mails for swindling purposes. Moore is an Englishman about forty years old, and a eccomplished rascal. In London he carried deveral swindling schemes with success. Ther he came to this city. A year ago he carried on the "Dominion Bureau" at No. 451 Eighth-ave., managed the "European Claims Agency the Merchants' Building. His methods of swindling the Merchants' Building. His methods of swindling were carried out with such skill that the police could not get sufficient evidence to warrant his arrest, although many complaints were made. His arrest in Jackson was cansed by M. D. Wheeler, an inspector of the Postoffice Perariment in Washington, who in a circular described Moore as "expert in everything he undertakes, from a game of draw-poker to preaching a functal sermon." In Jackson the swindler called himself the Rev. Mr. Howard, a Baptist preacher, and he also said he was the president of the "Gulf and Tennessee Italiroad Company." There is no such railroad but he managed to place contracts for building forty miles of the road and to swindle a number of men in the South in the bargain.

When they migrated to Poland they preserved among themselves, as far as possible, the German language. It became somewhat corrupted but in the main was the language spoken by those who originally left Germany. The language of Germany itself became changed in time, and now there is considerable difference between the words spoken by the Polish descendants of the German Hebrew and those spoken by educated Germans. The difference is said to be slight when a few corruptions of the original tongue are known. Educated Germans, however, cannot understand at first the peculiar Polish Hebrew style. It is now very common in many parts of the great East Side, and shop-keepers there have to learn, not only German, but also "the jargon" of the immigrants from Poland and Russa.

When the murderer of Carter Harrison had his preliminary examination the other day, the first legal step taken was to postpone his trial for a month. Why? Carter Harrison is dead; Michael Patrick Eugene Frendergast murdered him; there are witnesses who intercepted him at the door with the smoking pistol in his hand; he has admitted his guilt, and even gloried in it. Why then postpone? Why not try, sentence and hang him now? Why? Go to. These he foolish questions. There are a great many things to be done. In the first place, there is the postponement of a month. Then when that month rolls around, an accommodating judge will postpone the case for two. When the two months have elapsed, the attorney for Michael Patrick Eugene Prendergast will have cholera morbus or some other gastric derangement, and the case will go over. When after interminable delays it comes to trial, new delays are heaped in front of the old delays like the mighty peaks which rise, range after range, in the high Sierras. By this time it will not only be doubtful whether Michael Patrick Eugene Prendergast committed the crime, but it will even be doubtful whether Michael Patrick Eugene Prendergast at all. He will have prudently occupied his prison time in going mad; he will be afflicted with emotional insanity, temporary manha, locomotor ataxia, cerebral paralysis; senile dementia will stare him in the face. The sympathies of the people will be worked upon. The dead man's friends by that time will have forgotten him, and his relatives will be busily engaged in quarrelling over his estate. There will be languor in the prosecution of the State's attorney. There will be keen activity in the defence by some ambitions in the prosecution of the State's attorney. A STRANGE PICTURE OF PERSIA.

CONDITIONS EXTANT IN THE LAND OF THE SHAH-THE NEGLECT OF THE GOVERN-MENT SAID TO BE THE CAUSE.

The article published in the "Nouvelle Revue" recently by Achmed Bey gives an unattractive pict-ure of the conditions extant in modern Persia It is, perhaps, well for Montesquieu, the brillian author of "Lettres Persanes," that he is no longer mong the living. The story told by the Bey would be painful reading to the Frenchman, who pictured the land of the Shah as a Utopia of freedom and happiness. Achmed makes it a land of slavery, espotism and bribery.

"All the ills suffered by Persia," says the writer, "its division, its degradation by foreign powers, the destruction of its commerce, of its industry and its art-have been caused by the neglect and vils of its government. The Hakims of the vinces are usually members of the ruling family they have nothing to do and have no relations with the people. The real governors, or statthalters, the Pishkars, are all in all, tax collectors, judges and executive officers. Hakims and Pishkars purchase their offices. They turn with well-filled purses t the 'heavenly court' of the Shah, who protects th ishes in the water and the stars of heaven. He who offers the most becomes statthalter. But outdde of the Shah, there are also other importar personages in Teheran—cunuchs and ministers who demand their share. The statthalters receiv no salaries, and despite this, are obliged to make yearly presents to the ruler and ministers. Who way will do, the houses, property and clothing of the subjects are sold."

'As to the ministers, they are numerous, but their nunication-of which there is none in Persia another is the distinguished Minister of Royal Photography; a third calls himself 'Minister of Mu eums.' There is, in fact, a 'Minister of Electric Apparatus.' As a matter of course, aft these great men demand presents, and a court of sycophants men demand presents, and a court of sycophants, for which the people pay, surrounds them. There are no judges in Persta. Matters in dispute are settled by the Molia, and the scales of justice always incline toward the side where the money is. The so-called army includes generals, colonels and soldiers. The latter wear no shoes and nourish themselves as well as they can from booty. The office of army commander is also to be had for money. Thus a terrible anarchy reigns in the land. The Perstans emigrate in masses to find homes abroad. They do well to do so. Now and then there are revolutions. Under the present ruler there have been no less than thirty. They were suppressed and their leaders were killed in a cruel manner. But the Perstan people, who possess good and praiseworthy qualities, have not spoken their last word."

THE BOYCOTT NOT AUTHORIZED.

Regarding the boycetting of Hackett, Carhart & o., the clothiers, the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor has adopted resolutions declar-ing that the firm has been a strictly union house for eight years; that the boycott was not authorized by any District Assembly, National Trade As-sembly or General Executive Board, and is unjust to the firm, which has always been favorable to the Knights of Labor.
